Brushes

Gouache paint can be used with a variety of brushes, but it is important to choose brushes that are soft and absorbent. Synthetic brushes are a good choice for gouache painting, as they are less likely to absorb water and paint.

Water

Water is an essential part of gouache painting. You will need water to thin the paint, and to clean your brushes. It is important to use distilled water, as tap water can contain minerals that can affect the paint.

Paper or other surface

Gouache paint can be used on a variety of surfaces, including paper, canvas, and wood. If you are using paper, choose a paper that is heavy and absorbent. If you are using canvas, prime the canvas with gesso before painting.

Palette

A palette is a surface on which you can mix and store your paint. A white palette is a good choice for gouache painting, as it will help you to see the colors of your paint more clearly.

- Washes: A wash is a thin layer of paint that is applied to the paper. Washes can be used to create a variety of effects, including backgrounds, skies, and water. To create a wash, dip your brush in water and then in paint. Brush the paint onto the paper in a light, even layer.
- Glazing: Glazing is a technique that involves applying thin layers of paint over each other. Glazing can be used to create a variety of effects, including depth, luminosity, and color blending. To create a glaze, dip your brush in water and then in paint. Brush the paint onto the paper in a thin, even layer. Allow the paint to dry completely before applying another layer.
