Salminen's paintings are characterized by their bold colors and expressive brushwork. He often uses a palette of bright blues, reds, and yellows, and his brushstrokes are thick and energetic. Salminen's paintings are also known for their sense of movement and depth. He often uses overlapping planes and multiple perspectives to create a sense of space and depth.

Salminen's work has been compared to that of other urban landscape painters, such as Edward Hopper and Reginald Marsh. However, Salminen's work is unique in its own way. He has a distinct style that is instantly recognizable, and his paintings capture the beauty and chaos of city life in a way that is both personal and universal.

Salminen's paintings are a celebration of the urban landscape. He captures the beauty of the city's architecture, its people, and its energy.
