

Luxury After The Terror: Elizabeth Taylor's Enduring Glamour in the Shadow of 9/11

On September 11, 2001, the world changed forever. The terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon claimed the lives of nearly 3,000 people and sent shockwaves through the global community. In the aftermath of the attacks, many people were left wondering how they could possibly go on living their lives in a world that had been so dramatically altered.

For some, the answer was to seek solace in luxury. In the months and years following 9/11, sales of luxury goods soared. People who had once been content with modest purchases now found themselves spending lavishly on designer clothes, jewelry, and cars. It was as if they were trying to fill the void created by the attacks with material possessions.
